TAXATION BILLS TO LAST READING

Amendments to Senate Bill Will Not Materially Change Its Meaning.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 21. (Sp.)—From all indications regardless of anticipated opposition, senate bills Nos. 77 and 78, the first of the administration tax measures, will pass a third reading at today's session of the legislature, having been recommended for passage Monday night by the finance ways and means committee of the house and senate.

Six amendments were adopted, five of which alter the phraseology of senate bill 77 without materially affecting the measure, while another amendment increases the salary of the tax statistician from $3,000 to $4,000. Senate bill 78 which provides for the sliding scale of rates, was recommended for passage without alteration. Only one bill was made outside members of the committee. This was by T. F. Bonner, of Nashville, chairman of the tax committee of the Tennessee Manufacturers' association. In unqualified terms he approved the bill and said in such approval he believed he voiced the sentiment of the association. Senator John C. Houck, of Knoxville, who has three amendments made to the bill, but all were defeated. His amendments would make out two members of railroad commission elected from any one political party and would fix the term at six years in office. Another amendment which he offered would require all complaints to be made in writing and would have prevented any person from approaching a member of the board on any tax matter pending, from addressing the member except in open session and then only after application had been made and a date set for such hearing. The third amendment would have given authority to the governor to discharge any person having in such qualification who failed to perform his duties.

The members of the finance ways and means committee were in no humor for any amendment which would have a tendency to inject politics into the bills, or which might be construed as affecting the constitutionality of the measures, and consequently Mr. Houck's amendments were tabled. A separate measure when presented.

Senators Dorris, Louban, Glavin and Heston spoke in favor of the bills. Following the public hearing on the bills, the senate committee went into executive session and later the house committee met. Both committees recommended the bills with the minor amendments for passage. Senators Worley and Long were absent from the meeting.

BRIGMAN APPEALS HEAVY SENTENCE

Dan Brigman, of Covington, Tenn., convicted in the federal court recently on eight counts of a long-term charge of operating an illicit 50-gallon still and selling liquor without license, was sentenced Tuesday by Judge McCall to serve two years and two days in the penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., and to pay a fine of $500 and costs.

Brigman immediately filed notice of an appeal and was released on a $4,000 bond. John Loren, a companion of Brigman, sentenced Saturday to the same penitentiary, left Monday for Atlanta to begin his sentence. The two were arrested in the summer of 1918 in a raid by deputy United States marshals.

LAUGHTER HAPPY IN TROPICAL REPUBLIC

Attorney-General Bates said Tuesday that he got direct information that E. A. Laughter was in New Orleans, La., at the time the decision of the federal court was affirmed by the higher United States court in which Laughter was wanted to serve four years for conspiracy to evade the Reed amendment. He said he tried to get in touch with T. S. Marshall Stanley Trevelyan the same day to inform him of Laughter's presence in the city in order to affect his arrest, but failed. Laughter, he believes, took a steamer for Honduras.
